

"There are three types of executives in the world. There are those who can get short-term results and haven't a clue of where they are going to take the company in future. Conversely, they are those who have a great 10- year plan but are going to be out of business in ten months. And then there are those who can get short-term results in conjunction with a vision for the future. These are the good ones, but they are in unbelievably short supply."

HUMAN TALENT DEVELOPMENT AFRICA presents: CORPORATE EXCELLENCE AND CORPORATE RENEWAL SUMMIT

THEME: THE RENAISSANCE: FROM ASHES TO EXCELLENCE; CORPORATE EXCELLENCE - A PILLAR TO A VIBRANT ECONOMY

This seminar will take us on a path to growth and renewal. It will demonstrate to us in a very convincing way that there is light at the end of the tunnel and that by embracing a few simple truths and aggression, we can all start moving towards it. At the core of the Summit is the need for Zimbabwean corporates to establish and maintain a healthy balance between continuity and innovation to resuscitate and sustain economic growth. Most organizational transformation agendas are more about improving the present than they are about creating the future. As yesterday's mass markets continue to decompose into even smaller market niches, it is becoming apparent that today's market leaders will be those who continually differentiate themselves. Total corporate excellence is the key; cost efficiencies, quality and speed are evidently prerequisites for survival. Success has become more increasingly tied to innovation and creativity which are the major dictates of corporate excellence.
